

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A refrigerant pump employed in a semiconductor cooling device includes a sealed casing, an electric motor having a stator disposed outside the sealed casing and a rotor disposed within the sealed casing, a pump mechanism juxtaposed with the electric motor, and a drive shaft for transmitting a rotational force of the rotor to the pump mechanism. The stator is positioned closer to the pump mechanism than the rotor is.